The pallbearers at the funeral of An-drew C. Halstead were Austin Mans-field, Charles B. Foote, Merrill Loomis, Elihu Buckley, William H. Spook and Ezra D. Pogg. Rev. Mr. Mason spoke very finely of the long and useful life of the deceased merchant. The interment was in the family lot in Evergreen cemetery.

Samuel A. Stevens, formerly in the fur and hat business on Chapel street, later prominent in various corporations, is improving and it is now thought he will recover. He has been ill for several weeks at his home on Wall street, and about ten days ago a consultation of physicians was held. His physician, Dr. S. D. Gilbert, said yesterday that the prospects for Mr. Stevens' recovery were quite favorable.

Professor Charles Bonney terminates May 1 his engagement as director of music at the First Baptist church and on that date begins service as director of music at Dwight Place church. He will proceed to organize a chorus choir and quartet for Dwight Place church. Mrs. Bonney, who has been leading soprano at the Baptist church, will occupy a similar position in the Dwight Place quartet.

ETNA LIFE'S FINE SHOWING.

Solid and Reliable as Ever—A Wisely Managed Corporation.

The Aetna Life's exhibit for the year 1894, printed in another column, we invite the attention of our readers and the numerous patrons of the com-pany to. Notwithstanding the gen-eral depression in every branch of in-dustry, and the stringency of money the Aetna Life has emerged from the crisis stronger in every particular than before. At the commencement of the year the management decided that it would to a considerable extent restrict its effort for new business, and thereby reduce expenses. While its receipts have been increased $217,601.59 during the year, its expenses have been re-duced over the previous year, $37,-345.29.

The Aetna Life's business has been actively, yet conservatively, managed, hence the unequalled favorable results it has given to its insured and it com-mences the new year with better pros-pects than existed one year ago, and there is every reason to believe that the year will prove in every respect an improvement over the past.

IS LIFE WORTH LIVING?

REV. DR. GORDON OF OLD SOUTH CHURCH, BOSTON.

Speaks on the Subject at United Church Last Night—A Striking and Powerful Discourse—Man's Conscience and Reason—The Hope of Immortality.

Rev. George A. Gordon, D. D., pastor of Old South church, Boston, spoke last evening at the United church on the subject: "Is Life Worth Living?" The doctor said that the fact that Christ gave His life that men is worth living, and living well.

The individual conscience, supposing we have one, is a great, almost the only, factor in our life which leads us to well living. He spoke of the recent book by Kild on "Social Evolution," in which it is stated that reason is not moral. This, Dr. Gordon, said is not borne out by facts. If reason was not moral, in its essential elements, then religion would have a hard time to get along.

Man surely has a conscience of what is right, and what is wrong. Conscience and judgment are indestructible facts in the constitution of man. They must do the infinite work of life. The old theology has at least one magnificent section, that which gives the expression of sublime retribution. All theology rests on the moral nature of man since conscience and judgment are essential to this moral nature. This shows the vast significance of the conscience. God is our judge and we will be measured according to His standards, not according to our own. The true Jacob's ladder is the conscience of man. So long as a man feels himself in pos-session of a conscience, he acknowledges the mind's ability to measure, and so long as he is accountable to a higher power.

Socrates says a man in this world is a soldier on guard and when a man grows tired of living and takes his own life he is a traitor, so say also Plato, and all the most substantial, the most excellent men who have ever existed.

Public conscience as it is, is declared in the light in which we live. The home in the power behind every life, to hold it up or drag it down. There is no service more beautiful than that of the marriage ceremony when the parties concerned are properly related. When we think, for instance, of old Yale with its hundreds of students, young men who will fill the professions and high places of the world, we must think of what is behind all this, urging them on. It is the home, the self-sacrificing mother and father at the head of that home.

Religion is the outstanding sovereign power in the history of man. This humanity of ours is held in the bosom of God, as are the planets, the whole stellar universe. Yet we are losing our humanity and can we get it back? There was, the doctor said, in his native town an old peddler who had a violin which he highly prized and one day when he had the misfortune to drop and break it in pieces his grief was uncontrollable until he had taken each piece and fitted it in its place until the instrument was intact again. Then it was found that the tone was even better than before, so is our humanity broken in a thousand fragments, but we have one who can put together the pieces, can season the sacrifice of mothers of His grace and love, and by the boon of His eternal presence He can make melody in our hearts richer than ever.

Dr. Merriam of Worcester, Mass., will speak at Center church next Sun-day evening.

VISIT TO A ROYAL PALACE.

Climb the steps a little higher and we find ourselves on a terrace about 800 feet above the plain below; this spot is called "Gloriette"; we ascend a flight of steps to the top of a tall colonnade and obtain a view of Vienna. Below us we observe a Roman ruin and a tall obelisk, and right near by is the "Schone Brunnen" (the beautiful fountain) which has given its name to the palace and surroundings. To my mind this spot taken as a whole is one of the loveliest places I have visited. To come here on a warm summer day and witness the sun as it casts its departing rays on the trees, lawns, and water is a real pleasure, in fact an inspiration born of the place itself. Beyond is the great city of Vienna throbbing and beating with real German activity, with its tendrils of city improvements almost entwining themselves about this beautiful spot, while all around us is primeval forest which has been cured and tamed by the patient labors and skill of the landscape gardener, who has after many years made this lovely Schonbrunn so peculiarly delightful, that as we descend passing through the chateau grounds on our return to the city, we turn about and look back exclaiming "If this Schonbrunn and its surroundings are so very lovely, what can the next world offer as beautiful?"

If such a thing as an "earthly para-dise" is possible, oh! ye weary ones seek it at Schonbrunn! The popular Emperor Franz Joseph opens his park daily, thus permitting poor and rich alike to enter and delight themselves in these fairly heavenly grounds. It will be but a few years and this charming spot will be within the em-brace of Vienna; in fact the city is growing so rapidly that its outer limits nearly now extend to the gates of Schonbrunn.

Notes—One word as to water in Vi-enna. It is said to possess every quality of perfect drinking water. It is cool, sweet, and of inexhaustible supply. A doctor studying at the university told me that he had heard in Philadelphia that the Vienna water was the best in the world, but that is to be taken "cum grano sa-lis" for the Viennese do not claim as much.

All the European capitals are now supplied with good water, (except per-haps Paris) owing to the great influx of tourists the cities of Europe have expended vast sums of money in ob-taining supplies of good water; es-pecially is this the case with the Ger-man cities and with Venice, Florence, Rome and Naples. The beer and light wines to be had everywhere in Europe, are good and harmless, but water drink-ers can safely indulge in their favorite beverage. The water supply of Rome is surpassed only by that of London and Philadelphia.
